

GSOE9400 Engineering Postgraduate Research Essentials Student/ Supervisor Agreement

GSOE9400 is a postgraduate research course aimed to prepare research students as well as possible for their confirmation review. There are three assessment tasks, all of which must be satisfactorily submitted: annotated bibliography, literature survey, and research proposal.

The course objectives are:

- An increased awareness about the ways successful academic writers structure their writing, and the register of language appropriate for thesis and research writing.
- A systematic approach in managing research reading and research writing.
- Increased confidence and improved skills in speaking about research to a range of audiences.
- Awareness of strengths and weaknesses in communicating and appropriate strategies for improvement.

This document is to record that both student and supervisor are aware of the role of the course in the student's candidature.

I understand that I am required to pass GSOE9400 in order to complete the requirements for confirmation as set out by the Faculty of Engineering, UNSW.

Student's name

Signature

Date

I understand that GSOE9400 is a compulsory element of the candidature of this student and that successful completion of the course and its assessments are required for confirmation of this student and that I undertake to support the activities of this student while undertaking this course.

Supervisor's name

Signature

Date